Dear Mr. Rogalski,

There is nothing secret or sensitive in this email. (except the demonstration that McDonald's USA and McDonald's Corporation have engaged in a pattern of racketeering activity within the U.S.A. also)

This email is CCed to Mr. Lehman.

Off the record for now, but what I am saying in this email, I will very soon formally notify you and the FBI and lots of other people.

Very quickly, an informal explanation as to why there is also a RICO pattern of racketeering activity within the United States.

I will explain in a better way later with a video if you want, or face to face if you were to agree to meet me, but I can assure you I am right. It took me a very long time to understand because it's so counter intuitive and we all biases, we all have tendencies to even immediately think it's impossible for McDonald's to be a criminal entity.

<https://www.fincen.gov/what-money-laundering>

"What is money laundering? With few exceptions, criminals are motivated by one thing-profit. Greed drives the criminal, and the end result is that illegally-gained money must be introduced into the nation's legitimate financial systems." (I emphasize)

The explanation sent to New York Times journalist Constant Méheut, explanation of the fraud regarding the instant-win fraud for France for the year 2011, this one:

<https://www.tojournalists.com/open-letters/explanations-sent-to-constant-meheut-may-25-2022/>

I assume that you understand and agree that the instant-win for France for 2011 constitutes fraud. (Serious fraud since it targeted children also)

But do you understand the, for example, 2013 instant-win fraud which happened within the United States?

Demonstration:

First, for the record, print a copy of this page:

https://corporate.mcdonalds.com/corpmcd/our-stories/article/monopoly_2013.html

And you can already forward it to the FBI.

I attach a PDF to this email.

In the USA, for 2013, McDonald's criminally claimed:

"one-in-four* odds of winning"

"* Odds are based on Game Pieces (each has 2 Game Stamps); mostly food prizes."

So, odds based on 2 Game Stamps.

I once made a mistake. There was a time I mistakenly thought there was a difference between "a double sticker" and "a double winning sticker". In France, they used the term "double winning sticker" and there was a time I thought it made a difference. Actually, given the context (probability of winning), it makes no difference. Why? Because since we calculate the probability of winning and not losing, and the fact McDonald's claims there is at least 1 chance of winning, there must therefore necessarily be at least 1 winning sticker in the basis of the calculation.

By trying to defraud people legally (which would be illegal no matter what since it's illegally to intentionally try to scam people and that the fine print is in itself the proof of intent) McDonald's messed up and actually committed some extremely serious frauds.

When McDonald's in France states that the basis is a "double winning sticker" in calculating the probability of winning, the adjective "winning" is actually redundant/repetitive/superfluous.

So, for the year 2013, in the U.S.A. McDonald's defrauded consumers by a four-fold deviation from what they promised.

Like I explained in the 2-page Statement of Facts:

https://www.ecthrwatch.org/timeline/2-page-only-statement-of-facts-mcdonalds-pattern-of-racketeering-activity/2-page-statement-of-facts_mcdonalds_rico_pora_fcpa_case_Redacted.pdf

"It's exactly as if a jewelry store started selling jewelries claiming it's 12k gold but the fine print would claim that it's actually 24k gold and in reality it would only be 6k gold."

What's terrible is that despite the fact McDonald's Corporation knew (since at least 2015, if not 2013 and/or if not 2012!), they kept defrauding American consumers including many children (aggravating circumstances) in 2016 when an edition of the fraud took place again in America (see attached file screen shot "USA2016 copy.png").

By the way, this file "USA2016 copy.png" has been displaced on my computer shortly after I started contacting Mr. Lehman and I believe the security of my computer has been compromised because files simply don't get moved like this. Furthermore, I was hacked, if I recall correctly, fall... 2018 or 2019, I can double check.

Best regards,

Vincent Le Corre

This summer, cash, cars, vacations and million dollar prizes, along with your favorite McDonald's food, are all up for grabs at nearly 14,000 McDonald's restaurants across the U.S. as the 21st edition of MONOPOLY® at McDonald's returns July 16. With one-in-four* odds of winning and Game Pieces being distributed on a variety of customers' favorite menu items, MONOPOLY enthusiasts have more chances to win big this year, which means even more reasons to play.

"Our customer's favorite promotion, MONOPOLY at McDonald's, is still going strong," said Douglas Freeland, Marketing Director for McDonald's USA. "With cash, FIAT® vehicles, trips to the Super Bowl, the Beats by Dre Pill, and your chance to win a $1 million prize on a Big Mac, this summer will be more fun than ever at McDonald's!"

This year's game pieces will be available on many menu favorites, including: Premium McWrap®; Big Mac sandwich; Chicken McNuggets® (10 pc. & 20 pc.); Filet-O-Fish® sandwich; Large Fries; Egg White Delight McMuffin® sandwich; Sausage McMuffin with Egg; Oatmeal; Hash Browns and Medium (16 oz.) & Large (22 oz.) cold McCafé drinks and Large McCafé Iced Coffee (32 oz.), Medium (21 oz.) Cash prizes ranging from $50 to $1 million, new FIAT® 500 vehicles, Delta Vacations trips for two, Redbox® movie rentals, Beaches® Resorts Luxury Included® Caribbean Vacations, Super Bowl XLVIII trip from EA SPORTS, Shell Fuel For A Year, along with tasty McDonald's menu items and many more prizes are all up for grabs. MONOPOLY at McDonald's is available in restaurants until August 12, or while supplies last, and online until 11:59:59 on August 26.

While the promotion continues to drum up natural excitement for McDonald's customers, there are also additional activities to celebrate its summer return:

MONOPOLY at McDonald's on the Race Track: This year, McDonald's kicks off the launch of MONOPOLY at McDonald's with an innovative new Pass Go! Sweepstakes featuring Earnhardt Ganassi Racing with Felix Sabates (EGR) driver Jamie McMurray. At the Loudon, NH race on July 14, every time McMurray passes the start/finish line a lucky fan receives $200. If McMurray completes all 301 laps, the fan wins $60,200. "This is unprecedented and exciting," said Douglas Freeland, Marketing Director for McDonald's USA. McMurray will also drive a newly designed MONOPOLY brand-themed race car and wear a matching fire suit. The car will also race on August 11 in Watkins Glen, NY.

Social Media Engagement: This year, MONOPOLY at McDonald's will once again tap into to social media to help drive the conversation online. On Twitter, fans can keep up with the conversation by following @McDonalds or using the hashtag #McDMonopoly throughout the promotion period. There will also be posts throughout July which will blend elements of the traditional board game, such as the introduction of the new MONOPOLY Cat token chosen by fans earlier this year in a worldwide vote. The new cat token will be in MONOPOLY games at retail this summer.

Local Market Events: To further celebrate the return of MONOPOLY at McDonald's, several cities across the country will be hosting events in their markets in the first week following the launch of the game. Various markets will also take to their regional social media channels to help promote their efforts. For more information, customers can follow their local Twitter pages, or keep up with the hashtag #McDMonopoly on Twitter.
